Molotov Asks Jap Rule, Atom Facts

LONDON, Nov. 6 (AP)—In a Moscow address today Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov again called for an Allied control of Japan and protested atomic energy secrecy. In a broadcast opening Russia's observance of the 28th anniversary of the Soviet revolution, he asserted:

"In the treatment of the defeated we should not let ourselves be guided by our feelings, but only by the necessity to prevent a new aggression. This applies to all countries which bear the responsibility for securing peace.

"We must then mention here the force of atomic energy which was experienced in the war with Japan. Nowadays there ought to be no secrecy about this subject."

This was the first time a high Soviet official had suggested that the United States and Great Britain share their practical knowledge of atomic energy as a means of warfare.

Molotov apparently was designated to make the traditional anniversary address in place of Generalissimo Stalin, who likely will not speak.

The Soviet monitor's version of Molotov's remarks concerning Japan was that the liberation of China was of the greatest importance to the world.

Molotov told a cheering crowd that, with victory in war, "now we can return to peacetime labor."

"Now that peace has come, every effort must be made not to permit a new aggression," Molotov said. Formation of blocs in western Europe will not create a peaceful Europe."

He was quoted by the monitor as saying the war-born British-Soviet-American coalition was being tested in peace and failure of the recent London conference of foreign ministers was a warning of pitfalls ahead.

"But difficulties arose before," he added. "The coalition, however, always found a solution in the interests of all."

"Only joint collaboration of all countries that bore the brunt of the war can secure success of the new international (peace) organization," Molotov said. "Expressions of good intentions are not enough. The Soviet Union will be a reliable bulwark in the defense of peace and is ready to prove it, no only by words, but by deeds."

He declared Nazis soon to defend their lives before the war crimes court at Nuernberg, Germany, would be called upon to answer for the destruction wrought upon Russia.

"The Fascist invaders destroyed 1710 towns and 70,000 smaller communities in our country," he said. "They burned and destroyed more than 6,000,000 buildings; 25,000,000 people were rendered homeless.

"The Hitlerites destroyed or damaged 31,850 industries employing 4,000,000 workers. They destroyed 98,000 collective farms, 7,000,000 horses, 17,000,000 cattle. We cannot forget this and must demand from countries which started the war at least some replacement."

He said the main strongpoints of aggression in West and East had been liquidated. The radio

Lewis and CIO's Murray In Fiery Clash at Parley

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—A hot exchange between Mine Union Leaded John L. Lewis and CIO President Philip Murray today threw the labor-management conference into dispute over Lewis' demand for a bigger role.

Lewis came out of the scrap with a temporary victory by obtaining delay in creation of an important executive committee.

The conference agenda called for an eight-member committee, with four places each for labor and management. Labor's votes were to be divided equally between the AFL and CIO. Lewis demanded places for his United Mine Workers and the Railroad Brotherhoods.

Murray, one-time ally of Lewis, protested any changes, declaring he had heard reports of a "veritable blitz" by Lewis to get on the committee.

Lewis shoulted that Murray's words constituted "despicable and unique German terminology."

Gripping a table, Lewis roared: "Mr. Lewis doesn't care a tinker's malediction whether he is a member of any committee personally," but he made it clear he wanted his mine workers represented.

Murray retorted that Lewis, from past acquaintance, knew he (Murray) never employed "Hitler-like tactics." He added he was prepared to give consideration to Lewis' position.

AFL President William Green backed Lewis.

Wait Higgins' Word On 3 Closed Plants

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 6 (AP)—Andrew J. Higgins said he will have "an important announcement to make about Friday" on the future of his three closed boat building plants here.

Higgins shut down the plants last Thursday when 2000 AFL union employes walked out in protest against his failure to negotiate a new contract. He announced intention of liquidating the company.

Pearl Harbor Quiz Hits Snag, G. O. P. Men Say

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Two Republican members of the congressional committee investigating the Pearl Harbor disaster declared today the probe "has been brought to a halt."

Rep. Gearhart (R.) of California told the House "a true investigation" had been stopped through adoption by the committee of a rule denying individual members full access to secret government files.

Rep. Keefe (R.) of Wisconsin rose to afree with Gearhart's remarks and to add:

The procedure thus far clearly indicates we will get only the facts the Army and Navy wish to give us."

Keefe declared a Capt. Cramer, whom he did not identify otherwise, is "one of the most vital and important" witnesses in the investigation committee members are not allowed to see him.

Keefe said Cramer is in a psychopathic ward at Bethesda (Md.) Naval Hospital and "whole legions of stories have arisen aobtu the manner he was broken down in mind and health."

"I'm surprised they've only looked him up! I'm surprised he hasn't been liquidated," commented Rep. Short (R.) of Missouri.

Ryti Arrested For Aid to Nazis

ADM. WILLIAM F. HALSEY
Speaking at Plaque Presentation Aboard "Big E"
INP by Bill Jones

Big E Welcome Thrills Halsey

Adm. William F. "Bull" Halsey, whose indomitable Third Fleet made helpless hulks of so many Jap warships, was reunited with his former flagship, the doughty aircraft carrier Enterprise, today at the South Boston Navy Yard, where she is being converted into a troop transport.

As Adm. Halsey went aboard, the ship's band let go with a thundering musical welcome that bespoke affection as well as respect for the commander who shared the "Big E's" glory.

From an especially constructed platform on the flight deck, with 2000 officers and men drawn up, the admiral expressed his gratitude for the opportunity to be with them, especially to be again with 21 officers and men who were with him on the Enterprise when it received word of Pearl Harbor. He said:

"We will never forget those days when things were tough. We were 150 miles from the entrance of Pearl Harbor when the message came. My first reaction was, 'They're crazy!' It took me 15 minutes to realize.

"Our air group was all ashore," he stated. "It took us six or seven hours to get them back. Most of them had never had any night flying experience.

"We steamed into Pearl Harbor and saw the desolation. That was something that bit into the soul. We must never again let down our guard as we have before. We want peace, but to have it we have to be respected, and to be respected we have to be strong."

Then, while the carrier's 18 battle flags streamed proudly overhead, Halsey presented the Bronze Star Medal to Lt. Com. John Usher Monro of Chestnut st., Andover, damage control officer and first lieutenant of the ship, for distinguished service under fire. The citation read in part:

"On May 14, 1945, when a bomb explosion resulting in a large fire threatened the safety of his ship, his leadership and organization were reflected by the rapid and efficient extinguishing of the fire."

Witnesses to the honor conferred on the Andover man were his wife, Dorothy, and his mother, Mrs. John Monro, as well as former Navy Secretary Charles Francis Adams and Mrs. Adams, former Gov. Frank G. Allen and Mrs. Allen, Rep. Christian Herter and other Bay Staters of note. Most were members of the Navy League of the United States.

State Police Guard Polls At Revere

State police were called into Revere today to keep a watchful eye on the voting as Mayor Raymond E. Carey and Rep. Peter Jordan climaxed their bitter campaign and voters there and in 19 other cities outside Boston went to the polls to choose their municipal governments.

WILLIAM A. REILLY

Capt. Joseph L. Ferrari and 10 officers in plain clothes arrived in the city shortly before the polls opened at 8 a. m. One officer was stationed at City Hall, another at police headquarters and the remainder circulated throughout the day in the 16 precincts of the city's five wards.

The State Police were sent to Revere as a result of a conference late yesterday between Leo Meehan, a member of the Democratic city committee, and Atty. Gen. Clarence A. Barnes.

Mayor Carey, seeking re-election to a third term, and Jordan, Republican whip in the lower branch of the Legislature, have engaged in a bitter campaign.

Two weeks ago Jordan charged he was "locked out" of City Hall when he attempted to stage a banquet for his campaign workers.

Sixteen Revere taxpayers recently went to Superior Court with a petition to permit Jordan to gain access to the city's financial records.

Mayors and minor officers will be elected in 16 other cities today, while Cambridge and Lowell, operating under the Plan E form of government, will choose nine city councilors who later will name mayors from their membership.

Election officials in Cambridge reported they anticipated a turnout of more than 30,000 voters.

In Lynn, Mayor Arthur J. Frawley is opposed by ex-Mayor Albert Cole, whose place he took when Cole entered the armed forces.

In Somerville Mayor G. Edward Bradley seeks re-election with Alderman Harold A. Palmer as his opponent.

Waltham's race sees Mayor John E. Devane seeking a third term. He is opposed by Harry A. Turner.

In Newton Mayor Paul M. Goddard seeks his fourth term with former Alderman Dennis M. Cronin and Hugh S. Boyd running against him.

Medford has Mayor Walter E. Lawrence up for re-election with State Rep. Michael F. Skerry as his opponent.

In Quincy, Mayor Charles A. Ross seeks re-election with City Council President Joseph Kendricks against him.

Everett's mayor, Frank E. Lewis, is out for his sixth term, with Alderman James F. Reynolds in opposition.

In Worcester, acting Mayor John H. Toomey, Rep., filling out the unexpired term of former Mayor William A. Bennett, now county sheriff, seeks his own first term. He is opposed by State Sen. Charles E. J. Sullivan, Democrat.

In Marlboro, Mayor Michael P. Cronin is out for a fourth term, with City Council Pres. Carlton W. Allen against him.

Fall River's constant mayor, Alexander C. Murray, is retiring after 11 years in office. Former Mayor Edmond P. Talbot and State Sen. William P. Grant are contesting for the post.

In Fitchburg, Mayor Alfred Woollacott is out for his fifth term, with State Sen. George H. Stanton running against him for the third time in a row.

In Gardner, Mayor Oscar R. Anderholm seeks a third term and is opposed by City Councilman Eugene O. Turcotte.

In Leominster, Mayor Mathias P. Lapierre is also out for a third term with City Council Pres. Paul R. Nettel opposing.

Springfield has Mayor J. Albin Anderson (R.) running for a second term with Alderman Daniel Brunton as his opponent.

In Westfield, Mayor Arthur B. Long seeks a second term with Dennis S. Shannon opposing.

In Chicopee Mayor Edward A. Vourbeau seeks re-election and is opposed by former state Sen. Chester T. Skibinski.

Pittsfield has a three-cornered race with Mayor James Fallon seeking a fourth term and Arthur Burdick and Carl J. Chiaretto running against him.

Dog Sticks By Dead Pal In Watertown

A light yellow mongrel that couldn't have crashed a show for pedigreed dogs if he had a personal letter from President Truman to the doorkeepers gave Watertown pedestrians a lesson in loyalty today.

He and two other mongrels, one a little white something-or-other, had been playing in Mt. Auburn st., near Cottage st. A motorist ran down the white pup, killed him and drove speedily on.

The yellow mongrel stood valiantly over his friend's body—while the third dog vanished. Passersby tried to get the guardian dog out of the street. He wouldn't budge. Whizzing autos did not daunt him. Driver after driver vered to avoid hitting him.

It was a long time before someone thought to phone Watertown's dog officer, Guy Clark. It was noon, three hours after the white dog was killed, that Clark and an assistant arrived.

The yellow mongrel was not impressed. He stood his ground over the body of his pal. Clark had to throw a noose round his neck and hold him while an assistant removed the little body on the pavement.

The car containing the dead dog sped away. Clark held the other canine until it was too late for a chase, then turned him loose.

It's happened before. Some dogs have it, some do not. When a mongrel has it he is blue-blooded in any book even if he never wore a blue ribbon in his life.

Curley Asks Guard Over Heavy Vote

Ideal weather conditions and an unusually large number of women voters brought unexpectedly heavy balloting today throughout Boston as the issues in the city's six-man mayoralty battle and the fights for minor office were left to the decision of the people.

JAMES M. CURLEY

In a tour of the city's 22 wards ending at noon, Chairman William A. Motley of the Boston election commission found voting was much heavier than had been anticipated in all sections of the city although the balloting had been slow during the first hour.

Cong. James M. Curley, who in pre-election figuring seemed to be racing with Mayor Kerrigan for the mayoralty honors well ahead of the other four in the field, visited Police Comr. Thomas F. Sullivan early in the afternoon and announced he had requested police protection for the ballots tonight at City Hall.

"Although I am certain of victory," he said, "I want to make sure the election is not stolen from me."

Comr. Sullivan declined to comment on the request.

In the tour of the city it was noticeable that more campaign cars were taking voters to the polls and that there were more workers outside polling places than since pre-war days.

Especially heavy voting was noted in precincts in Jamaica Plain where both Curley and former Fire Comr. William Arthur Reilly are strong, and in South Boston, Mayor Kerrigan's stronghold.

An unusually large vote also was being run up in the two Back Bay wards where Republican leaders have split over the Reilly and Kerrigan candidacies.

Charlestown also was registering a large vote but this was attributed in part to the spirited City Council fight between Councilor Michael L. Kinsella and Rep. David M. Cleary.

A heavy vote seemingly was also being registered in the West End, stronghold of Fire Comr. John I. Fitzgerald, who recently was appointed to that post by Mayor Kerrigan.

Other large votes were being registered in Ward 11, Roxbury, and Ward 19, Jamaica Plain, but interest in the council fights there, with World War II veterans seeking to unseat Councilors Mat-

Allies at Last Reveal Italy Armistice Terms

By GRAHAM HOVEY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Allies made public the much-discussed Italian Armistice today, spiking some rumors butfailing to clear up entirely why the terms were kept secret 26 months.

Released simultaneously in Washington, London and Rome, the armistice and related documents—totaling some 10,000 words—disclosed that the armistice terms covered these 12 points:

1—Immediate cessation of all hostile activity by the Italians.

2—Italy will deny to the Germans facilities for use against United Nations.

3—All prisoners or internees of United Nations to be immediately turned over to Allied commander-in-chief, and none may be evacuated to Germany.

4—Immediate transfer of Italian fleet and aircraft to points designed.

5—Italian merchant shipping may be requisitioned by the Allied commander-in-chief.

6—Immediate surrender of Corsica and of all Italian territory, both islands and mainland, to Allies.

7—Immediate guarantee of free use by Allies of all airfields and naval ports in Italian territory.

8—Immediate withdrawal to Italy of Italian armed forces from all participation in war.

9—Guarantee by Italian government it will employ all its available armed forces to insure exact compliance with armistice.

10—Allied commander-in-chief reserves right to take any measure necessary for protection of Allied forces.

11—Allied commander-in-chief to impose disarmament, demobilization and demilitarization.

12—Conditions of a political, economic and financial nature with which Italy will be bound to comply to be transmitted later.

The long secrecy in regard to the terms was explained by government officials thus:

The State Department and British foreign office discussed publication of the terms as early as December, 1943, but Allied military officials objected. They said the Germans and Mussolini's Fascist government in Northern Italy could make good propaganda use of the armistice terms.

Reminded by newsmen almost half a year had elapsed since V-E Day, officials said Britain and America felt after the Potsdam Big Three conference a final peace treaty with Italy soon would be written.

Secretary of State Byrnes recently called the armistice terms "harsh and obsolete."

Three Bay State Strikes Ended

More than 200 workers ended their eight-day strike at the Kirstein Leather Co. plant in Peabody and returned to work today, while in New Bedford settlement of the three-week-old teamsters' strike and return of 82 workers at the National Pairpoint Corp. was announced.

In Westfield, however, a strike of 384 production employes of the Foster Textile Machine Co. was under way today in an effort to enforce a union demand for a 25-cent hourly wage increase. The strikers, members of Local 1851, International Ass'n of Machinists, AFL, began picketing.

Meantime, four of Maine's nine cotton mills from which 9000 workers are out on strike opened again today to give workers a chance to return, the other five mills announcing they would remain closed.

Girl, 3, Leaves Home in Night To Seek GI Dad

The best minds in the nation have tangled with the troop redeployment problem, but none more forcibly or directly than did little Diane Savage of East Cottage st. early today. Diane is 3 years old, with blue eyes and blonde curls. She's interested in troop movements because her daddy, Charles R. Savage, is in the Army overseas. Her mother, Florence, works nights in a restaurant.

This morning in the shivering cold at 2:30 Diane walked out of the house.

A half-hour later a passing motorist, Bronco Aslimensky of Bay State rd., Dorchester, found her huddled in a store doorway at Dudley and East Cottage sts.

He took her to the Dudley st. police station, where, after vainly trying to warm her and solicit information, police took her to City Hospital.

Mrs. Savage was contacted, and mother and child were reunited at the hospital.

It was there that Diane bashfully told why she went out in the cold.

"I went looking for Daddy, Mommy," she explained. "All the other kids' daddies come home. Why can't my daddy?"

ONE MAN'S FAMILY—If loyalty carries any weight in the election returns, Edward A. Cunningham, candidate for councilman in New York city, is as good as in. Archbishop of York Sees Drift From Church Bridals

LONDON, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Rt. Rev. Cyril Foster Garbett, archbishop of York, asserted today there is a widespread drift in Britain away from "the Christian conception of marriage" and suggested it might be necessary to limit weddings to civil ceremonies, with the church giving its blessing only if the couples accept the church's doctrine against divorce.

"Marriage no longer is regarded by the nation as a whole as either a sacrament or a holy estate," he said in addressing the diocesan conference, "but as a contract which can be broken fairly easily by mutual consent . . . We church people have some responsibility."

Even adultery, he said, need not be followed necessarily by divorce.

"Sometimes the sin is committed under circumstances of great temptation, and the man or woman never really lost love for the wife or husband," Dr. Garbett said.

Touching on the government's concern over the falling birth rate, Dr. Garbett asserted that although the state could do much to promote family life, "no state exhortation would persuade couples to have children if they did not want them."

R. I. Cops Seize Boston Suspect

James P. Kerrigan, 29, of Jamaica Plain, State Prison parolee wanted in connection with a score of recent Greater Boston holdups, was arrested at gunpoint today by Providence, R. I., police.

The alleged gunman was seated in a stolen car as two officers closed in on the machine, drew guns and placed him under arrest.

The officers just missed nabbing a man thought to be his pal, Arthur E. Stegeman, 27, of Jamaica Plain, who was standing on the sidewalk near the car and walked away as he saw the officers approaching.

The arresting officers, Patrolmen Thomas Gilchrist and R. G. Graziano, found a loaded .45 caliber revolver and a Merchant Marine officer's cap in the rear seat of the car.

As the officers approached the car they noticed a man on the sidewalk near the machine but paid no attention to him as he walked away, assuming he was merely a bystander.

While checking Kerrigan's description with the circulars they had received last week from Boston police, they realized they had missed a golden opportunity to bag both members of the widely sought holdup combination. His description tallied with Stegeman's.

In addition to the Mulrad's Tavern holdup, police have warrants charging both Kerrigan and Stegeman with complicity in the $400 Egyptian theater holdup in Brighton, Oct. 7, and a daring daylight robbery at the McCarthy Bros. milk company office in Linden Park st., Roxbury, in which the gunmen escaped with $927 in bills and $15.42 in change.

Kerrigan gave his name as "Corrigan" at the time of his arrest but officers quickly identified him from the descriptions in circulars broadcast throughout New England in the search for the two gunmen.

Lt. James V. Crowley and Inspector Thomas Conaty rushed to Providence when they received the report of Kerrigan's arrest and questioned him.

According to Crowley, he admitted taking part in the Sept. 28 holdup of John J. Mulley in Mulrad's Tavern, Columbia rd., Dorchester, in which $1240 was taken. However, Crowley said, he had not as yet admitted involvement in any other holdups.

Police attention was attracted to Kerrigan by an Army MP, who reported the man had said he was going to "shoot a bartender." The soldier noted the machine's registration number, which he furnishe to police and a short time later the two officers came upon the parked auto.

Kerrigan's arrest came only four days after police had arrested Mrs. Katherine E. Paxton, 22, of Bicknell ave., Roxbury, alleged girl friend of Stegeman, on a charge of harboring a fugitive.

She is being held in $1500 for hearing Thursday in the Roxbury court on the charge that she hid Stegeman in her apartment while his hair was cut and dyed to change his appearance.

Also being held for the grand jury are two Brookline women, Mrs. Jeanne Daley, 22, of Davis ave., and Miss Mary J. Julian, 22, of Kent st., on charges of being accessories in Kerrigan's holdups.

Boston Shoes Shipped by Air

Enough orders to keep New England shoe factories and shoe machinery plants in capacity operation for many months to come, and a Boston bid for a share of Europe's postwar shoe business were today's highlights of the Victory Shoe Week celebration in this city.

Today a shipment of 24 sample pairs of shoes, the wares of a leading Boston maker of women's sports styles, was to be placed aboard a transatlantic plane which will leave Bedford airport at 3 p. m. for a flight to London on the new Boston-to-Europe schedule.

The shoe show has its headquarters at Hotel Statler, with auxiliary displays at Hotel Touraine, Parker House and Copley-Plaza.

Court Sorry But Sentences Girl

Calling it "a shame that there is no place in this state to send such a girl," Municipal Judge Elias Shamon today revoked suspension af a women's reformatory sentence and ordered Ruth G. Dacey, 18, formerly of Brockton, committed to Sherborn.

"I hate to send her to the reformatory, but what can I do?" asked Judge Shamon when the gorl was surrendered by probation officials on an old vagrancy charge.

"She has no home or relatives. I'd like to continue her probation, but she has to be protected as well as the public," he said.

Probation officers said Miss Dacey was given a suspended term on Oct. 10 by Chief Justice Davis B. Keniston when she was charged with being a vagrant.

She was surrendered after the woman for whom she worked as a housemaid complained she stole cosmetics. The girl admitted the thefts and said she was giving cosmetics to her boy friend.

GI Names Briton, Wins Divorce

When he moved out, an English sailor moved in, ex-Pvt. Richard Johnson, 21, of Albany st., Roxbury, testified in Suffolk probate court today.

Johnson, charging his wife with misconduct, won an uncontested divorce from Mrs. Alice Johnson of Irving st., Watertown.

The veteran, who won three battle stars and a Purple Heart, said they were married in 1943 and he was shipped to Europe soon afterward. He came home last March, he told Judge John V. Mahoney, to find his wife approaching motherhood. "She said she wanted to marry an English sailor," he testified.

"I told her," he added "to go ahead."

River Dragged For Heir Now Missing 6 Days

DOWNIEVILLE, Cal., Nov. 6 (INS)—Some kind of a break was hoped for today by officials supervising the search for 3-year-old Dickie tum Suden. Chill showers broke over the search area and weather forecasts said rain could be expected today in the sixth day since the boy vanished from the yard of his mountain home.

With the coming of the rains, auhorities frankly were pessimistic about finding the boy alive.

Hundreds of Army and civilian searchers were ready to take up the hunt, which already has left them nearly exhausted and in some cases slightly injured in their foot-by-foot scouring of the mountainside.

Dist. Atty. Alfred R. Lowey said soldiers would begin poling the Yuba river today. He explained the river could not be dragged in the usual fashion because of its rocky bottom and irregular banks.

Kidnaping theories were discounted by officials, although two FBI men were on hand to take over the investigation if any abduction clues turn up.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph tum Suden, parents of the lost boy, and members of wealthy San Francisco bay region families, clung to the hope that the child still was alive.

Divorces Hubby She Calls Snob

Merely because her husband came from Dorchester, while her home had been in the West End, he was always reminding her of what he considered class distinction Mrs. Evelyn Lack Sack, 23, of Phillips st., Beacon Hill, testified in probate court today.

Judge Robert G. Wilson upheld her charge of cruelty against Myer Sack, 24, a Beverly st., business man, and gave her an uncontested divorce.

Mrs. Sack, who held her 2-year-old daughter, Linda, in her arms on the stand while testifying, also won $18 a week for support.

"He always thought himself superior because he came from Dorchester and I was from the West End. Also, he was very rude, harsh and vulgar. He called me a 'fat horse' and a 'slob,' and asked me, 'Why is it you don't look like other women?'

"Once," she said, "he got on his knees and cried and said he would be good, and I forgave him, but it did not work out."

The final straw, she testified, was when he moved out all the furniture, including the baby's high chair, taking the baby's clothes as well, and left her with an empty apartment.

Japs Fear Reds, Editor Finds

Japanese leaders fear the participation of Russia in the ocupation of their country, Harry Brundage, associate editor of Cosmopolitan, declared today in an address before the Advertising Club in Hotel Statler.

Brundage, first newsman to enter Tokyo after the surrender, said the Japs "don't mind the Yanks but do not want Russia to have any part in the occupation."

The Japs are the most completely defeated nation in history, Brundage declared. The surrender came as a complete surprise to them because they had been told their forces were winning every battle, he said.

eH said the hatred for Americans was a feeling developed in the later years of the war.

we should have established a blockade and let the Japs shift for themselves thsi year," he declared. "Now, I think we will have to feed and clothe them for at least a year."

AWAITS BLESSED EVENT—A New Year's baby is expected at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Holden in Hollywood. Mrs. Holden is the former Brenda Marshall, famous film star. The couple are making over a nursery for the new arrival.

WEDDING PLANS—An early marriage is assured between Martha Vickers, film star, and Al Herd, of Los Angeles, who is getting a Las Vegas divorce. The couple say the date won't be set until after New Year.

MISSING—Kidnap fears are expressed by the parents of Thora Chamberlain, 15, daughter of a wealthy contractor, who disappeared last Friday near her San Jose, Cal., home. Schoolmates claim they saw her enter an auto with a man who accosted her.

National Interest Centered on City Elections

By the Associated Press

Politicians looked to today's first post-war elections for possible clues on what portends in the 1946 congressional races and even in the 1948 presidential contest.

Most of the elections were municipal, but some had national overtones.

The situation in brief:

NEW YORK—William O'Dwyer ran for mayor on the Democratic and American Labor tickets against Judge Jonah Goldstein, Republican-Liberal-Fusion candidate endorsed by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, and Newbold Morris, Republican Independent, supported by Mayor LaGuardia.

James A. Farley, Sen. Robert Wagner, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Sec. of Commerce Henry A. Wallace stumped for O'Dwyer. Mrs. Wendell Willkie and her late husband's 1940 campaign manager, Russell Davenport, worked for Morris.

DETROIT—Prestige of the CIO Political Action Committee was involved in the non-partisan mayoralty contest between Mayor Edward J. Jeffries, Jr., and Richard T. Frankensteen, vice-president of the CIO United Automobile Workers.

PITTSBURGH—David L. Lawrence, Democratic state chairman, was his party's choice to continue 12 years' control of the mayoralty. His Republican opponent is Robert N. Waddell.

NEW JERSEY—To succeed D. Lane Powers, Republican who resigned from the House, the voters had their choice of five candidates.

CLEVELAND—Mayor Thomas A. Burke, Democrat, had Republican City Councilor Ray C. Miller as opposition.

Molotov

said the celebration opened amid scenes of great rejoicing.

"When the Germans invaded us they counted on the unexpectedness of their attack," Molotov said.

"Not only Germany, but many others thought the Soviet Union would not hold out long. They thought Hitler would triumph in a few weeks on months. After Hitler's eastern victories this seemed inevitable to many—mainly those who did not understand the character of the Soviet state.

"Germany's attack was also a test for our foreign friends, who watched with bated breath the difficulties of our country. The Soviet country withstood the test."

Molotov recalled how a "United anti-Hitler Front" of large and small Democratic countries was formed and how the Red Army assumed the offensive.

"The Anglo-Soviet-American coalition was successful," he said. "The second front in Western Europe, with Germany in a vise, made Germany's position impossible."

He accused Spain "and some other countries," of supporting the Axis.

In addition to naming a mayor, voters will elect 22 city councilors and two school committeemen, and will decide, through the sole referendum on the ballot, whether or not to increase the salaries of the city councilors by $1500 a year. A Yes vote favors the pay increase.

There are city council contests in all but three wards. Ten candidates seek the two vacancies on the school committee, with the two incumbents, Dr. Patrick J. Foley and Michael J. Ward, favored to repeat their victories of four years ago.

The three leading mayoral candidates all were early voters, casting their ballots in their respective precincts less than an hour after the polls opened.

Mayor Kerrigan and his mother, Mrs. Annie Kerrigan, cast their ballots at the Patrick Gavin School, F and West Seventh sts., South Boston.

Cong. Curley voted at the Mary Curley School in Jamaica Plain, and Candidate Reilly and Mrs. Reilly voted at Curtis Hall, South st., Jamaica Plain.

Mayor Kerrigan asserted he would win on the issue of dual job-holding alone. He flayed candidate Curley "for his capacity for greed" and cited the congressional action several years ago which "forced him to resign from his Washington post when elected mayor at that time."

Candidate Reilly said: "I will devote myself to the problem of securing lower taxes so that new jobs may be established here through new business. We are losing business establishments in Boston instead of gaining them.

"With Reilly as mayor, services which reach into the home will be improved. The traffic problem will be met at once to make it easier to find parking spaces in Boston."

Cong. Curley's final statement said:

"I have conducted a dignified campaign that I am happy to say has brought me many thousands of congratulations. I have attempted to impress upon the people of Boston that the next four years will be more critical than any similar years in the city's history. Boston demands and needs intelligent and experienced leadership. That, James M. Curley, alone, of the six candidates for mayor is conceded to possess the qualifications indicates the outcome of Tuesday's election."

Lee's 11th-hour press release said his campaign was "finishing right on the beam on which it started, and its constructive platform for city-wide prosperity."

The Sawtelle release said he lashed out at "the practice of spending too much among too few for which our citizens have received too little."

Feeney said in his windup: "The people who have been so undecided as to whom they would support for mayor are swinging to me because of my safe and sane program."

Fish a la Suds

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 6 (AP)—Bill Blocker, volunteering to fry the string of fish he and his pals caught, put the cleaned fish in a big paper bag presumably containing corn meal.

The frying pan was soon full of bubbles and he discovered he had used soap chips instead of corn meal.

on behalf of the League, presented Halsey with a plaque for the Enterprise. It attested to the 71 enemy ships sunk by her pilots, 192 probably sunk or damaged, and the 911 aircraft shot down.

The Enterprise is soon to embark on her task of bringing GIs home from Europe. When her work is finally done, she will be preserved as a war memorial by order of President Truman, whose directive came as a climax to a campaign by the Record-American-Sunday Advertiser and affiliated Hearst newspapers to save the "Big E" from the scrap heap.

Veterans' Friend

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Q—I was 29 years old when inducted, served four years and was honorably discharged. Have returned to my old job, but would like to attend night school for special course. Would I be eligible for such course under GI Bill? P. E., Waverly.

A—You may apply for a one-year refresher course or re-training program. Suggest you contact Educational Div., Veterans Bureau, 17 Court st., Boston.

Q—If a soldier has family allowance paid to his mother, as well as to his wife and children, does that give him extra points toward discharge? G. B., Biddeford, Me.

A—No. A soldier is allowed 12 points for each dependent child up to three children, but these are the only dependents for whom he may claim points.

Q—My son has been in the Army for seven months, has not been overseas, but is eligible for an honorable discharge. Is he entitled to mustering-out pay and the state bonus? S. P., Framingham.

A—Generally speaking, honorably discharged men (few exceptions) are eligible for both mustering-out pay and the state bonuses.

Q—If a single officer marries on the first day of terminal leave, would he draw rental and subsistence allowance for his wife or only for himself, as he was single when he entered terminal leave? J. P., Roslindale.

A—The officer would draw rental and subsistence as a married man from date of marriage to end of terminal leave.

Q—What is the name of the booklet given to servicemen at time of discharge which gives general information about benefits under the G. I. bill and so on? T. R., Manchester.

A—It is called "Going Back to Civilian Life." It is a blue booklet and the most recent edition is dated August, 1945, and issued jointly by the War and Navy departments.

Q—Is a discharged serviceman entitled to both the discharge emblem that is sewn on his uniform and the button that is worn in the lapel? J. G., Ellsworth, Me.

A—Yes, he is entitled to both. If he was discharged before the emblems were issued he may obtain one by applying to the nearest Army post.

Q—What is terminal leave? F. R., Boston.

A—An officer accrues 2½ days' leave per month. He may use this as annual leave, or when leaving the service for any unused leave (terminal leave) he may have, not to exceed 120 days; he receives full pay and allowance.

Marines to Quit North China

TIENTSIN, Nov. 6 (AP3—The United States Marines will be withdrawn shortly from north China, probably by Dec. 5, it was reported unofficially here today.

The Marines virtually have completed their mission to restore order and help disarm the Japanese. Isolated Jap groups still have not been disarmed, but Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist troops, beginning to arrive in large numbers, should have the situation in hand by that time.

In towns now occupied by the Marines, except possibly in the case of Chinwangtao, there are no disorders which cannot be handled by local police, and Kuomintang troops troops the three Metarine-occupied areas—Tientsin, Peiping and Tsingtao—are orderly, except for isolated instances.

Assembly Now Rules France

PARIS, Nov. 6 (AP)—Gen. Charles DeGaulle submitted his resignation as provisional president today to the Constituent Assembly, returning the reigns of government to France's first elected legislative body in five years.

The Assembly, charged with writing a new Fourth Republic constitution, was expected to ask DeGaulle to continue a caretaker government until later in the week. Then the delegates will name a new provisional president to to serve during the seven months task. There seemed little doubt DeGaulle would be returned to office for that period also.

Secret Weapons In Bond Show

Radar devices, the recoilless rifle and 40mm anti-aircraft guns remotely controlled, are among the hitherto top secret weapons of war to be demonstrated at the Victory in Science show at M. I. T. Saturday, Sunday and Monday, to spur Victory Loan bond sales.

One of the most thrilling events will be an actual demonstration of how the Navy fights fires at sea.

Each victory bond purchased at a member store of the Boston Retail Trade Board, or at any national bank or trust company in Greater Boston, will entitle the buyer to two tickets to the show.

The Massachusetts War Finance Committee expects an attendance of 100,000 Victory Loan supporters during the three-day demonstration. In many instances visitors will be permitted to examine war gadgets whose use prevented Allied defeat on several occasions.

Priest, Nun Tell Jap Massacre

MANILA, Nov. 6 (AP)—A Spanish priest and a Filipino laborer, testifying at the war criminal trial of Lt.-Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, recounted today the starvation, torture and massacre of 6000 Filipino and Chinese civilians by Jap troops last spring.

Fr. Belarmino Decelis of the Spanish Augustinian order said the Japs jammed the 6000 civilians into the ancient Church of St. Augustine, oldest building in Manila on Feb. 5.

The men were thrown into the old dungeons which served the Spanish 100 years ago.

On Feb. 9 the men were forced to stand in the open streets under heavy artillery fire, then were march to Ft. Sanitago, where the burning and slayings took place.

Juan Paloda, the Filipino, testified he was one of 100 packed into a 20-foot dungeon. He was stabbed and later left for dead with 500 other bodies.

GIs Strip Tokyo P-X in Wild Orgy of 'Bedlam Bargains'

TOKYO, Nov. 6 (AP)—Souvenir crazy GIs have swamped in a giant two-day buying spree, the Army's program to supply them Japanese gewgaws at cost.

The Army's new post exchange, billed as "the finest in the world," opened last Saturday in the Hattori building, which is the Japanese equivalent to Tiffany or Cartier. Army agents had scoured Tokyo area for weeks buying kimonos, pearls, wood prints, lacquerware and other native handicraft.

Capt. W. W. Ward of New Orleans, with a staff of two lieutenants, five enlisted men and two truck drivers, spent a week redecorating the building, arranging displays and teaching 50 Japanese salesgirls the rudiments of English.

When the doors opened at noon Saturday the building looked as neat as any Fifth ave. department store, the counters piled high with colorful goods. When the doors closed at 5 p. m.—three hours ahead of schedule—the place looked as though it had been swept by a monsoon. In those five hours some 17,000 yelling, cheering, grinning, pushing soldiers and sailors had swarmed through two sales floors and cleaned them out, plunking down nearly $100,000.

Hundreds of soldiers preparing to return to the United States wanted to take back Christmas presents—and judging from the kimonos they bought, they hope to make their girl friends look like Nipponese rainbows.

After the last 3000 kimonos were sold, latecomers tried to buy those the salesgirls were wearing.

One small customer was given willing precedence by soldiers who crowded around the vase counter.

She was Mrs. Douglas MacArthur, who brought their son, "Doug," with her. Mrs. MacArthur bought two brightly colored cloisonne vases.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

This Is My Story ★ ★

By Gen. Jonathan Wainwright

(Copyright, 1945, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. Reproduction in whole in part strictly prohibited.)

The hot days at our Tarlac prison camp followed dismally one behind the other. We were routed out early for a roll call each morning, then given our rice. After my rice I would walk around the prison yard, which was about 200 yards by 100. I walked as long as my strength, or Jap plans for me, permitted. Then, if there were no questioners about, I would come back and read.

(Under stress of starvation, men will shed all dignity and do strange things, Gen. Johnathan M. Wainwright, who knew great hunger as a prisoner of the Japs, relates in the 27th article of his intimate story.)

Brig. Gen. Lewis Beebe and I had taken a few books with us from the library of the University Club in Manila. They were handed around like rare treasures, read and reread, even committed to memory. One that especially stands out in my mind was Kenneth Roberts' "Oliver Wiswell," which did more to take me out of myself than any other book I read. I am sure, as one officer said, that we would have read the telephone book from cover to cover if one had been available.

The ignominy of being made to do manual labor was still before us. But the hours of just sitting and waiting, for God knows what, palled. Brig. Gen. William E. Brougher, one of the truly great combat soldiers of Bataan, obtained some seeds and planted tomatoes, sweet potatoes and watermelons, and daily we inspected them as their first sprouts showed timidly above the sun-baked ground.

One day in July 1942, we were told each of us must write an essay, the subjects of which were assigned to us. I drew "America's Pre-War Policy in the Pacific," sat down and wrote at great length on what I believed, and still believe, was our appalling error in that part of the world. The Jap "schoolmaster" was sternly silent about my essay in further discussions.

The Jap officer in charge of our camp seldom visited us. He left most of the camp's supervision to a sergeant who delighted in ordering us around. He usually posted himself near the only exit of our barbed wire enclosure.

The wire was the height of Jap precaution. Few of us at Tarlac were in condition to stand the rigors of escape, for we could not have run or walked far from the camp, nor could we have existed very long in the mountains.

But we all dreamed of escaping, as cooped men do. And one day the opportunity all but faced some of the young enlisted men.

On that day we were to get some meat. It arrived in the shape of a starved but still rather frisky Philippine cow. The creature could not have weighed 150 pounds. We helped it tenderly out of the truck, but it suddenly broke away and began running around the prison yard.

Chased the Cow

The hungry Americans, including myself, gave chase. But the cow was in much better physical shape than any of us. It darted this way and that and then ran straight out the open gate.

By this time the senior officers and many juniors were completely winded. But a half a dozen enlisted men pursued the cow right through the gate, passing before the very noses of the heavily armed Jap guard.

It is possible they could have kept going. But in the stress of the moment their overwhelming craving for meat was greater than their craving for liberty. They chased the cow up a neighboring hill, where it turned and bolted back for the camp. It led the men right through the gate again, and in their gnawing hunger some of them did not even know they had been out of bounds.

It would have been a ludicrous performance at any other time, but now it was very serious, especially when the cow continued to evade our starving men in the enclosure.

A sergeant from the cow country, named Greenleaf, finally solved the dilemma. He borrowed rope from a suspicious Jap guard, fashioned a lasso, stole up within 15 feet of the cow and roped it neatly. An engineer soldier, who had been a butcher in civilian life, moved in with his borrowed knife, slaughtered the critter and cut it up. He wasted nothing.

When it was cut and dressed, the Jap sergeant stepped in and took one-third of it—the best parts—and gave this meat to the Jap guards. Then he turned savagely on the enlisted men who had pursued the cow out of the prison confines and vehemently bawled them out.

Col. Barry Dies

All of us suffered at Tarlac from the mental handicap of knowing that if we came down with anything worse than a cold our chances of being treated properly were next to nil.

For shortly after our arrival there, one of my best ordnance men, Col. Edwin F. Barry, came down with a streptococcus infection of the throat, and despite our pleas that he be rushed to a hospital he was casually treated in camp by a Jap medical officer. Col. Barry died of the infection on June 17. We buried him, with permission, in the Tarlac cemetery about a half a mile northwest of the camp, and again I made a sketch of the location—against the day when I might possibly deliver it to his family.

Brig. Gen. Stevens was another who had the misforttune to become seriously ill. He developed an abscess on the liver and suffered a slight heart attack. We were able this time to have him moved to a hospital.

But the hospital the Japs chose was the one at Camp O'Donnell, the worst in the Philippines. That was July 26, 1942, and the rest of us silently resolved we must not become any sicker than we were—a resolution increasingly hard to keep, when we looked at our bony bodies and the day's supply of food. Brooding over this, one of our officers lost his mind.

Tarlac brought together men who had been separated on Bataan and Corregidor and it was a time for quiet exchange of experiences and beliefs.

It was there, as I have reported, that I learned from Brig.-Gen. Clifford Bluemel the full story of the sorry condition of his Thirty-First Philippine Army Division on the eve of the Jap strike at Luzon. From other divisional commanders I heard similar stories of frightening unpreparedness, confirming my own observations. We had indeed faced a carefully trained foe with one of the most helpless armies in the history of arms. It was no comfort, sitting there in our rags at Tarlac, to consider the state of our preparedness on the eve of a war which had been brewing in Washington diplomatic circles for a long time before the blow fell.

I spent some time with my diary while at Tarlac, adding experiences and reading earlier passages over and over again. I had begun that particular book of memoirs on April 2, 1942, and the first entry always confronted me when I opened the book. Written just short of two weeks after I took over Gen. MacArthur's old place on Corregidor, it read:

"On this date I hereby pledge myself that unless ordered by higher authority to do so, I will not move my headquarters to the south, in the event that the fall of Corregidor is imminent, but will, if necessary, surrender myself with my troops. No other course of action would be honorable."

Bataan Doomed

Now, in Tarlac prison, I learned from officers who had served on Corregidor before I reached there that as far back as January, 1942, at the beginning of the Battle of Bataan, the question of the survival of Bataan and Corregidor had been discussed pessimistically.

At a conference on Jan. 24, MacArthur agreed with staff men that Bataan was doomed, as indeed it was, though our forces held it against appalling odds through the first week of April.

The Corregidor meeting of January concluded, as had been concluded in theoretical plans of years before, that Corregidor could not long stand with Bataan in the possession of the enemy. It stood 27 days.

When MacArthur was ordered to leave for Australia on March 10, Bataan was still only half-conquered, but he could see the handwriting on the wall, for at Mindanao he told officers—to whom I later talked at Tarlac—that Corregidor could not last beyond June 1.

He assumed that I would be able to get a force of 20,000 men there for The Rock's defense, but 11,000 was all I could muster when the time came—and, as you know, Corregidor finally went down on May 6.

The men at Tarlac who had been close to MacArthur during my days on Bataan told me of the commander-in-chief's great despair over our inevitable fate. He told Maj. Gen. George F. Moore:

"Never in history has a force of this size been so left out on a limb."

TOMORROW: Wainwright tells of his final days at Tarlac, an unexpected and inspiring performance of the National Anthem, and the start of his trip to Keranko, Formosa.)

14-Man Jury Sits At Murder Trial

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 6—Before the first 14-man jury ever to sit on a murder trial in Massachusetts, the state opened its case today against Peter J. Polchlopek, 40, of Chicopee, charged with the shooting death of his wife, Sadie, 39, in Chicopee Falls May 16.

The two additional jurors were selected under the provision of a new state law enacted since the first Noxon trial when a mistrial was declared because of the illness of a member of the 12-man jury.

Malden Blaze Drives Out 6

Six persons were driven to the street today when fire caused damage of $1500 to their three-story wooden dwelling in Garnet st., Malden, an area so congested that a second alarm was sounded to bring in apparatus from Melrose and Medford.

The blaze was discovered by Charles McKinnon, 60, a second floor resident, who rang an alarm after rousing his landlady, Mrs. Edith M. Candage. Firemen brought her down a ladder.

Others forced to flee were Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Gormley, third floor occupants, and Mr. and Mrs. Ada Webester of the first floor.

NORTHEAST AIRLINES

Four-engine, 60 passenger Douglas Airliners — the ultimate in traveling comfort and convenience — non-stop service Boston and New York every hour in an hour! in early 1946. Again, Northeast offers New England the finest in air transportation and service.

With a phenomenal increase in passengers of 371% in the last six months over the same period in 1944, Northeast has met the tremendous traveling demand necessitated by the resurgence of peacetime interests.

In addition to acquiring new four-engine, 60 passenger Airliners, Northeast is now standardizing on 26 passenger DC-3s with modern appointments resulting in increased efficiency and economy of operation.

On its established international routes which make a near neighborhood of Eastern Canada, the recreational centers of New England, and the industrial centers of the East, Northeast plans increased schedules. As additional equipment and facilities become available, service is to be restored to communities where it was discontinued during the war emergency.

NEW ROUTES already certified by C. A. B.

Early in 1946, Northeast Airlines will inaugurate its Cape Cod and Island service—a well-balanced, convenient schedule, serving all Cape and Island points from Boston and New York, with direct flights to both metropolitan centers from the Fall River-New Bedford area, Hyannis, Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket.

Northeast Airlines in early 1946 will start direct service from Portland to New York, with stops in the heavily populated areas of Lawrence-Lowell-Haverhill and Worcester-Fitchburg-Leominster. A well-balanced schedule will be inaugurated and increased to meet demand as additional equipment and facilities are available.

PROPOSED ROUTES Applied for:

Northeast Airlines has applied for a certificate to operate non-stop service from points in New England direct to Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, with additional scheduled services to Atlantic City, Trenton and Wilmington.

In following the policy of giving the finest in air transportation to New England and Eastern Canada, Northeast Airlines has applied for a certificate to operate frequent, convenient service direct to New Orleans via Atlanta and other intermediate stops.

Long in demand by New England and Eastern Canadian travelers, Boston-Bermuda service, operating four-engine Airliners with a flying time of 3 hrs., 15 min., has been applied for by Northeast Airlines.

Northeast Airlines and its 800 employees are proud to repeat their original pledge of giving the finest in air transportation.

TRUTH ABOUT PATTON

GEN. GEORGE S. PATTON, Jr., has made a triumphant return visit to Brittany, that province which was wrested from Nazi control by his Third Army in the first days of his spectacular and unprecedented march through the heart of France.

The war-stricken towns and cities greeted him joyfully and acclaimed him as their liberator.

This distinction—one of the honors so well deserved by General Patton's eminent military services—was in curious contrast to the attitude of sundry Left-Wing elements in his own country, where a Patton "smear" is continually attempted.

Gen. Patton is opposed to delivering conquered Germany over to the Communists and, as a consequence, the original smear falsely charged that he was unwilling to evict Nazis from their jobs.

Now the "smear" has taken a different turn.

Because of a patriotic speech which he made at Bad Nauheim on assuming command of the 15th Army, this great soldier has been aspersed in Congress and elsewhere as a "militarist."

Sen. Brien McMahon of Connecticut was one of those who "criticized" General Patton, taking exception to the general's warning that it would be wise for the United States to expect future wars.

Harry F. Young, Jr., commander of the American Legion Tank Corps, has made a satisfying rejoinder to what he aptly termed Sen. McMahon's "small calibre shot."

On the vital question of national defense the Legion Tank Corps wholeheartedly supports the Patton thesis.

"Our First World War men," Com. Young said, "thought they had killed off wars for all time.

"Most of our Second World War men think and hope they have accomplished what their comrades failed to do the first time.

"However, all of us know from grim experience that wars occur.

"We think it is better to expect wars and be prepared for them than to indulge in wishful thinking and get caught with our defenses down, as happened in 1914 and 1939."

NOT ONLY do the Tank Corps veterans uphold Gen. Patton's ideas as to national security—they also resent the calculated misrepresentations of his motives and actions.

"We of the Tank Corps," Com. Young declared, "are sick and tired of this constant sniping at our man Patton.

"Besides having been an honored member of this post since its earliest days, he has been one of the fightingest fighting men produced by the armed forces in both World Wars."

The hero of three great campaigns, as his own words prove, believes exactly as George Washington believed—that "the best means of PRESERVING PEACE is to be PREPARED FOR WAR."

"We honestly feel that was what Gen. Patton meant," Com. Young continued, "and we feel it is about time—or even overdue—that we STEP OUT and SHOUT IN HIS BEHALF."

This was a timely and a just retort.

On the subjects of Gen. Patton and our military defense, there are many millions of good Americans who would rather listen to the general's former comrades in victorious arms than to his backbiters and traducers, many of whom are not interested in the cause of America at all and most of whom have no records of any kind, military or otherwise, meriting either respect or comment.

"WHEN I became President it was perfectly apparent that the key by which the way could be opened to national progress was constructive economy. Only by the use of that policy could the high rates of taxation, which were retarding our development and prosperity, be diminished, and the enormous burden of our public debt be reduced." —CALVIN COOLIDGE.

WHO IS YOUR husband's favorite film star? Do you ever give this matter a serious thought? A Chicagoan said his favorite star was Joan Fontaine; that she was his idea of what a woman should be. His wife took this statement very seriously. She made an intensive study of Miss Fontaine's manner, makeup and way of dressing. This she spent considerable time and money trying to imitate. Then, after coming home from the movies one night her husband said his favorite star was now Lauren Bacall and he spent the rest of the evening raving about the husky-voiced sultry siren with the weary manner. All the time his wife, wearing a dress practically the same as Joan Fontaine wore in "Affairs of Susan," was on the verge of tears. Yes, ma'am, this is a true story. Sad, isn't it?

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

(Copyright, 1945, by King Features Syndicate)

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—It has been testified that President Roosevelt influenced John Hartford when Elliott wanted to borrow $200,000. Hartford says he did. Elliott says he didn't.

Hartford's story seems firm and straightforward. Elliott's is inclined to be vague. But not even Elliott denies that the President instigated the settlement whereby Jesse Jones got back 2500 shares of Elliott's Texas State Network for $4500.

Westbrook Pegler

It was represented to the lenders who gave up this stock that it was worthless, although Elliott, in a recent interview in Hollywood, boasted that in that same year, 1942, the company "began to show a profit."

If the stock was worthless and without prospects, what difference did it make to President Roosevelt who owned it?

Why did he want Jones to get back the stock as well as the notes which were the evidence of indebtedness?

THE PROCEEDINGS indicate that President Roosevelt recaptured this collateral with the intention of turning it over to Elliott or applying it on his son's interest as a windfall fortune.

In the end he did apply it to his son's interest, for he turned it over to Elliott's wife of that time, Ruth Googins Roosevelt, to satisfy Elliott's financial obligation to her in their divorce settlement and to meet Elliott's financial obligation to support their three children during their dependent years.

Two of the men named in the testimony are Sid Richardson and Charles Roeser, Ft. Worth oil men and friends of Elliott.

At Elliott's suggestion Richardson had been invited to the White House and entertained by the President in the role of counselor on the problems of independent oil producers, of whom he was one. Roeser also was similarly treated and consulted.

Richardson testified that he had told Elliott that he thought a certain proposal then pending would "destroy every independent in the business." Thereafter the President invited Richardson to the White House to advise him on matters of vital importance to Richardson's financial interests.

"Mr. Roeser and myself went into great detail giving our views," on "the general condition and what could be depended on in the oil business," Richardson said. He and Roeser represented the viewpoint of the independent oil interests.

ELIOTT'S TESTIMONY contains a rather rambling statement that Jesse Jones sent the stock certificates to Miss Grace Tully, the President's secretary at the White House, to be kept for him.

He never saw this stock, however. He mentioned it "several times" but "through some mistake or mixup," nobody seemed to know where the certificates were.

"In January, 1944, Ruth G. Roosevelt decided that she would carry out divorce proceedings," Elliott continued, "and wrote the President and asked if the certificates were available and she wanted them in Texas."

The President sent the stock to her with a letter saying they had been bought back. Half of the stock, now valued at $250,000-plus, went to Ruth, the other half was placed in trust for their three children.

In payment of his $40,000, Richardson got 400 shares in 1944, by which time, Elliott says, the company was $400,000 in the black, "before taxes."

Ruth testified that she and the children's trust went 50-50 in putting up the 400 shares for Richardson.

The record does not tell why Richardson was so favored by contrast with the treatment of the others. They not only destroyed their notes but gave up their collateral, whereas Richardson later received $40,000 worth of that collateral. Richardson testified: "Today, I don't think I would take the $40,000 for the stock."

SOL LESSER ran across an amusing thing while he was trying to clear the rights to the title "Pride of Kentucky." Believe it or not, most of the major studios claim rights to the use of certain States for movie titles. For example, 20th claim that they have exclusive dibs on "Kentucky." Paramount insist "California" belongs to them. Republic have latched onto "Montana." M-G-M say they own "Oklahoma" be says they own "Oklahoma" and Columbia has staked a priority on "Kansas." Sol is taking it up with the governor of Kentucky but he hasn't lost his sense of humor. "I may have to shift my locale and call my picture 'The Romance of Rhode Island,'" he laughs.

THE FANCY DRESS ball given by Mike Romanoff, to which the guests were invited to come as their ancestors, will probably go down in Hollywood social history along with the fabulous Bradley Martin ball 50 years ago in New York. Some of our film celebrities took the ancestor suggestion literally—others gagged it. Jimmie Stewart, with a skeleton head and bony, fleshless fingers, disguised himself completely—as did William Powell, enveloped in a sack labelled "Dust." No one knew Bill until he disclosed his identity. Janet Gaynor and Adrian, as two monkeys, were others who couldn't be told. Tony Duquette was cleverly concealed with an apple head, with Eve and the snake for trimmings. Mike himself, with a crown and ragged coat, as the imperial royal bum, was very amusing. Two of the best costumes were huge bottles of whisky and brandy completely enveloping the bodies and heads of Gladys and Mark Hellinger. June Allyson, as a child bride; Errol Flynn, as a gambler; Mrs. David Hearst and Cobina Wright, Jr., as little country girls; Mrs. Reginald Gardiner, as a Russian princess; Reggy, as Ronnie Prince Charlie; Judy Garland, as a very fancy tightrope walker; Henry Fonda, but wonderful as a country simpleton were a few who discarded masks early.

Ah, yes, there's good news tonight! Ah, yes, there's a happy woman in Winston-Salem, N. C., tonight! The War Production Board has announced new relaxations in the length and sweep of clothing for women.

The WPB makes titillating references throughout to the "body basic." I tried to guess what it meant by the "body basic" but the nearest I could get—from careful study of the official release—was that it is something intimately affected by WPB amendments L-85, L-116, and L-118.

So, if you happen to have a "body basic," be careful not to leave it out where it will be overexposed to these amendments.

The WPB, which is nothing if not thorough, and many contend it is not thorough, goes into details on relaxation of the restrictions.

Inasmuch as I have been tipped off confidentially that I have a couple of dame readers I thought the following might be of interest:

"As a result of the amendment of L-118 (it seems this is an amendment to an amendment, and how have you been Mrs. Grace Hartman?), the order relating to feminine lingerie, hems for this type of apparel may now be two inches in width instead of only one inch.

"Bi-swing, vent, pleated or Norfolk-type tops are now permissible for sleeping pajamas."

The release continues:

"Revision of L-118 (wouldn't you think they'd have the decency to leave poor old L-118 alone?), the feminine lounging wear order, authorizes hems one-inch in width instead of one-half inch. Belts exceeding one and one-half inches in width will be permitted for robes, bathrobes, negligees, housecoats or beach robes."

His car, which is registered with the ration board in Easton, Pa., caught on fire in Alexandria, Va., the other night. The entire rear end was burned out.

Both back tires and the spare perished in the flames. So Mr. Williams telephoned the Easton board, carefully explained the situation, and requested authorization to purchase three new tires.

This is the reply he received by mail two days later:

"You are advised you must apply to the board where the emergency exists. In the first place, the damaged tires must be inspected and the inspection certificate shown on form OPA R-1."

Being a man who always tries to please his government, Mr. Williams has dutifully filled three shoe boxes with ashes from the burned-up tires.

One box bears the label, "Left Rear," another "Right Rear," and the third, "Spare."

"Maybe they'll return the boxes and tell me to have the ashes recapped?", he comments.

"My ol' Army coat sure comes in handy all this week, while my pants are bein' cleaned an' pressed!"

Robert Bradford for the nomination

WHEN THESE two good-vote-getters of the Republican party lock horns as opponents, there remains very little statewide vote-getting manpower in the Republican ranks to furnish a strong candidate for lieutenant governor . . . As Massachusetts is proving itself more of a non-partisan state by the year, meaning that the electorate is more and more amenable to casting aside party lines to vote for individuals (as it did in electing Tobin, a Democrat governor, and Bradford, a Republican, lieutenant governor, in the last election), the chances of Paul Dever's ascending to the second highest office in the state, regardless of the outcome of the Lodge-Tobin or Bradford-Tobin result, are better than excellent

MR. DEVER is calculating his political future quite sagely . . . In 1948 he would have a real claim to his party's endorsement as candidate for Governor—should he have been lieutenant governor for one term . . . Gov. Tobin, in that year, would be facing a third-term candidacy without the appeal of a war record.

THE GOVERNOR'S ambition is known to embrace the United States Senate, incidentally . . . Sen. Walsh will prove a road-block to any Democratic aspirant for that high office, but the senior Senator eventually will abdicate that high office, his friends believe . . . Gov. Tobin looms as the Democratic candidate with the best claim to succeed Sen. Walsh . . . But any Tobin attempt at high office from this time on must be reconciled with the ambitions and prospects of another appealing candidate of the opposite major party who has as much Statewide appeal as Mr. Tobin, and probably more

THE CANDIDATE of the G. O. P. who can be depended upon to haunt our young Governor's dreams from this hour until they fight it out at the polls is Lt.-Col. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., who resigned his U. S. Senate seat to go to war.

Cookie Jar Treats

By MARTHA LEE
Household Editor

WITH THE VERY special holiday season of this year of 1945 rapidly approaching, pantries will bulge with good foods. Holidays call for plenty of cookies and it's not too soon to start collecting some new recipes.

Refrigerator cookies are one of the most inviting varieties we have. There are ever so many kinds and each one is somebody's favorite. Cherry Refrigerator Cookies, for instance, are gay in color with bits of scarlet cherries; and they're luscious in flavor also with the combination of rich almond, cherry and lemon. Then, too, they take a minimum of kitchen time during these hurried days as the cookies may be made in advance, refrigerated and sliced for baking as desired.

CHERRY FRIGERATOR COOKIES

3 cups sifted flour
1½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt ½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar 2 eggs, beaten
Juice and grated rind of ½ lemon
½ cup chopped almonds or walnuts
½ cup chopped candied cherries
Cherries for garnish, if desired

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cream together shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs. Beat well. Add flour mixture, blending well. Add lemon juice and rind, almonds or walnuts and cherries. Mix thoroughly. Form into rolls. Wrap in wax paper and chill. When wanted, slice ¼ inch thick. Bake on baking sheets in moderately hot oven (400 deg. F.) 10 to 12 minutes. If desired, garnish each cookie with thin slice of candied cherry. (This dough keeps well a week in refrigerator.) Makes about 6 dozen 2-inch cookies.

BUTTERSCOTCH COOKIES

½ cups flour, sifted (about)
1 tsp. soda
1 tsp. cream of tartar
½ tsp. salt 1 cup shortening
2 cups brown sugar 2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup nut meats

Mix and sift dry ingredients; cream shortening until soft; beat in sugar, eggs, vanilla and nuts. Stir in dry ingredients and knead into two rolls. Chill several hours or overnight in refrigerator. Slice paper-thin and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 deg. F.) for 8 minutes. Makes about 8 dozen cookies.

CHOCOLATE PINWHEEL COOKIES

½ cup shortening ½ cup sugar
1 egg yolk 1½ tsp. vanilla
1¼ cups flour ½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. baking powder
3 tbsp. milk
1 1-ounce square unsweetened chocolate, melted

Thoroughly cream shortening and sugar; add egg yolk and vanilla extract. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk. Divide dough in half; to one-half add chocolate; mix thoroughly. Roll white dough to ⅛-inch thickness on lightly floured surface. Roll chocolate dough same size and place on top of white dough. Roll like jelly roll and wrap in waxed paper. Chill thoroughly; cut in thin slices. Bake on greased cookie sheets in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) about 12 minutes. Makes 5 dozen cookies.

Keep the cookie jar brimming with good cookies

Beauty Latest Permanent Wave Fashion

IT'S THE TOUCH of the master that usually identifies any smart coiffure . . . and such a master of hair styling is in town this week to introduce his new luster-cool permanent wave . . . an extraordinary method that combines styling with waving . . . distinctly a 1945 innovation. By the way a woman wears her hair is her personality reflected . . . so to be smart-looking, she must wear a smart hairdo. Intriguingly lovely Warner star, Alexis Smith poses.

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Beauty and Fashion Editor

HERE'S A NEW twist to permanent waving that produces exciting results. True it is a bit revolutionary in method but a new triumph is achieved for the hair . . . a different, softer permanent wave that contains a master hair stylist's signature in the ultra-smart fashion lines.

Because elegant women everywhere demand the inimitable touch of the master . . . this pacesetter in hair fashions has devised an original and highly ingenious method of combining the styling with the permanent wave. And, he is in town this week to launch his new brainchild.

In this new type of wave . . . your own individualized coiffure is created FIRST. Then a special lotion is applied. Your new coiffure is pin-curled into waves and sprayed. A specially treated hood . . . light as a feather and resembling a shower cap . . . is then placed over the curlers and left on the head 10 to 20 minutes . . . depending upon the texture of the hair. You can read, smoke, telephone your friends or write letters with perfect ease while this is going on

ONLY TWO HOURS

The cap is removed and another lotion is applied. Like magic . . . emerges the softest, loveliest, easy-to-manage permanent ever . . . with the lines of the smartest coiffure already set. Not as in the past. First the wave, then the style. The whole process takes only about two hours. Yet this type of "coiffure permanent wave" gives the hair the body necessary for good grooming.

It waves the hair so close to the head without that fuzzy look. The creator of this luster-cool coiffure permanent wave declares he has hair original is especially excellent for very short hair, for difficult hair . . . bleached, tinted or ultra-fine texture. And the fine oils it contains . . . make it a kind of beneficial treatment at the same time . . . so that your curls are softly shining as a result.

Even if you don't require a permanent for your locks . . . but haven't as yet found the just-right style for your face and personality . . . let this master hair stylist give you the benefit of his artistic ability and genius in a gratis consultation.

We'll be glad to tell you the name of the shop giving this revolutionary new method of waving and the hair stylist, with whom you may have a complimentary consultation, if you phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

BORROWED from the Chinese . . . a leisure-hour coat scrolled with soutache braid on the high-necked, buttoned bodice and the loose mandarin sleeves . . . an at-home lovely to greet the most fastidious friends. The soft, unpressed pleats in front of the skirt give it fullness and swishing grace. It's fashioned of Eastman crush-resistant teca twill.—R. M.

This Wife on Dollar Dole

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I've been married for 30 years to a man who is 100 per cent perfect, no faults. He never leaves home, never does anything but live his own selfish life. He has never lost a day from work in 30 years, and I've never seen a pay check. I know nothing of his business affairs, and am just a housekeeper. He gives me a dollar occasionally to buy clothes.

I plead with him to turn money affairs of home to me, but no; he says no women will ever boss his life. I've raised seven children, the youngest 17 years and in high school. My children love us dearly, but father is at the head of the list, mother second. Father just smokes and reads papers.

W. H. B. C.

When your husband tells you no woman shall "ever boss his life," and he carries out his theory to the extent of buying the household supplies, I believe a good many women would be glad to have their husbands do the same thing. Buying groceries and supplies today is no easy chore, what with points and the ever-mounting cost of things.

The unhappy part of your married life is that you haven't a cent you can call your own. Cudgel your brains and see if there isn't something you can do to earn a little extra money. Have you every thought of a baby "sitter," as they call people who take care of small children while their parents are away?

Gold on Black Is Smart

By BETTINA BEDWELL

BLACK with a gleam of gold about it has always been one of the most effective fashion combinations. This winter this potent is working to make black dresses for holiday doings. A very simple black dress, with gold set on it in some way, is about as attractive a dress as can be found, and most women can wear it.

One of the good black dresses of the season, with gold details, is sketched. This one comes from that famous designer, Emmett Joyce, who made it for Samuel Kass. It is a shirtwaist type of black crepe, made very grand by a grosgrain fob and sash ends embroidered with gold Egyptian designs.

The high neckline and bracelet length sleeves are good details.

Farce Comedy Quite Boring

By PEGGY DOYLE

"Last House on the Left," which opened at the Wilbur last night is one of those opened-by-mistake productions.

Until paper rationing is officially lifted, a discussion of the assets or deficiencies of the new farce-comedy by Jean Carmen and Gene Barry might be regarded as a flagrant waste of good white space.

There are some attractive people in "Last House on the Left" but, unhappily, they are involved in a play that is frightfully boring when it is not tediously mundane.

Some very nice people are concerned in "Last House on the Left," but, with all their skill and good intentions, they are not equipped to put life into a production that is essentially a slow-motion excursion into tedia.

"IL TROVATORE" will be sung on Thursday night at the Opera House with Leonora Corona as Leonora.

JANE GREER, starlet, appears in person at RKO Boston on Thursday in connection with the "First Yank Into Tokyo"

JACQUELINE PAIGE plays an important role in "Last House on the Left," new farce-comedy at the Wilbur.

Bond Premiere For Memorial

A special Victory Bond screen premiere in the interest of the Eighth Victory Loan will be presented at Keith Memorial Theater on Thursday, Nov. 15.

"The Spanish Main," co-starring Maureen O'Hara and Paul Henreid in the spectacular Technicolor production, has been chosen as the feature attraction for the occasion.

Importantly featured in the film are Walter Slezak, Binnie Barnes and John Emery.

Star in Todd Show Invents Gadgets

June Knight, who has been signed to play a leading role in Michael Todd's production of "The Would-Be Gentleman," has turned an off-stage hobby . . . that of inventing gadgets . . . into a profitable sideline. She has patented a tricky cigarette case containing holder and lighter, a novel compact for powder, rouge, et and a number of other highly useful feminine appurtances.

'Sylvia Scarlett' Due at Majestic

"Sylvia Scarlett," starring Katharine Hepburn, Cary Grant and Brian Aherne, opens tomorrow on the Majestic Theater screen. Co-feature is "Sky Giant."

MODERN'S NEW BILL

"You Came Along," with Paramount's screen discovery, Lizabeth Scott, and Robert Cummings, is now showing on the Modern screen. The companion picture is "Follow That Woman."

Thin, Small Voice of the Veteran Rises to Shout

By AUSTEN LAKE

Austen Lake

I SUBMIT THIS LETTER as a scale model reaction of most home-coming soldiery. For ex-Sgt. John W. Crowther, lately of the 9th Infantry Division, is in that state of bitter-sweet confusion which assails the newly discharged veteran. He writes:

". . . A lot of cognac has slipped past the gullet since we sat in that dripping, stinking woods near Mortaigne. Being home is like coming out of an ether dream to a world of substance. I find it hard to adjust myself, or believe that this IS reality and these are the people and conditions we fought to preserve.

"Here we are, that great army of anonymity, now plunged into a world where we find ourselves as anonymous and voiceless as ever. We find business factions—the unions and management—intent on private throat cutting, with the ex-soldier in the middle. Our politicians talk glibly of another, greater world tragedy and speak smugly of the '12,000,000 military reservists' ready to do more fighting. That's US of course!

A Lesson in Human Nature

"WE RECEIVE LIP SERVICE in the form of high sounding promises to secure each veteran in his old opportunities, which we left two, three and four years ago when we were on the threshold of productive life. And actually we find the stay-at-homes unwilling to yield advantages gained during our absence and often at our expense.

"Myself as the nearest example! As you know Dad died shortly after I was inducted early in '42. I was pretty much of a green kid, but I learned the insurance business from him and he was a good teacher. He planned to leave his business to his kids as what he called 'an institutional inheritance.'

"So during those long, bitter years—and there is no greater hell than a combat infantry outfit—I got great comfort from the dreams that sometime I'd come home, if fate was kind, and pick up the threads of Dad's work. For he was a fine, civic-minded, generous giver of his time, friendship and money and had weaved himself into the solid fabric of his little world. So I knew that the thousands of close, loyal friends who he had served in endless ways would be glad to perpetuate his memory.

"Yes! I knew that all I had to do was to walk into ——— & Co. and see warm-hearted Mr. ——— and say, 'Well, sir, I'm emancipated and back in Dad's business, and he'd say, 'Swell, Jack! We've been expecting you. The company's policies are all yours just as when your Dad was alive.' I'd learned human nature from Dad, who was a great believer in people's loyalty and integrity—'Greatest asset a man has,' he used to say. So hell, I knew human nature, or so I thought!

"But when I changed into civies and made the early rounds, I got answers that were all of one pattern—refusals. At first I thought it was accidental. But, one after another, these concerns whom Dad has served so devotedly, said, 'Sorry, Jack, but we've placed those accounts with other people since you went away. We're satisfied and don't plan any changes.

"They were all very nice about it. Asked me to drop in sometime and tell them about my war experiences. Might have lunch together. Call me up sometime! Nice seeing you! And there it ended. Not 10 times, or 20, or 40! But all the time!

"So I won't go into Dad's business. There isn't any business. The stay-at-homes swallowed it all . . . Well, hell, I'm just another casualty of war. I'll manage somehow. But suddenly it sickens me to hear all this political pap about 'our brave heroes. Nothing is too good for them.' It's so much bagpipe music.

Whisper to a Mighty Shout

"I WONDER WHERE ALL THESE prosperous war workers and business people who squabble so fiercely over postwar advantages would be if we combat men lost the war instead of winning it? I've had to learn to keep my trap shut lately because I get into some savage arguments with the 'men-behind-the-men-behind-the-guns.' They shout about how far we combat soldiers would have gone without their support. They say, 'We gave you the best and most weapons in the world, and paid for them.'

"Sure! Sure! They did all that—while living tranquil lives with fat weekly pay checks and cordial surroundings, home at evening, theaters, decent food and a chance to establish themselves. And that was O. K. with us, even while we froze in foxholes and never knew at what moment Fate might flash our number, and lived like groundhogs accepting indignities till our souls shriveled like hard-shell walnuts. Need I tell you that?

"No GI ever thought of America as a big Christmas tree loaded with easy dough and soft jobs, just waiting to be picked. He thought of this country the way he left it—a land of broad opportunities, fair competition and an honest chance to create something at a decent profit.

"Well, Austen, the boys aren't home yet—just a scant million or so. So our voice hasn't yet been heard—just a thin, shrill whisper perhaps. But it will rise to a mighty shout some day—a shout of embittered rage. Then the politicians, whose ears are so sensitive to the screams of voting blocs such as the industrial unions, will listen to US.

"One thing more, and I remember how we talked about it in that damp, stinking French woods. If only the discharged veterans would realize what a vast potential power they are. Not for themselves, but for the whole country. For they have a blood and bones stake in this nation with priority to be heard. If only they could be impressed with the need to form themselves into one big nation-wide union, instead of being broken into dozens of helpless cliques, used politically one against the other—a United Veterans Front

"Then possibly we could eliminate much of the greeds and radicalism in government, business and labor which now hides behind the screen of false democracy. Then and then only will we return to the basic ideas and sound dealings which we like to think existed with our fathers. You promised you would write about it Austen, while we sat in that dirty, dripping woods."

(Ed.—You've written it better than I could, John!)

Let's Prove Him Wrong Say Yanks of Owner

By HUCK FINNEGAN

Ted Collins doesn't believe his 1945 Boston Yanks are of championship caliber. He told the assembled sportswriters so at their weekly luncheon at the Kenmore. Yet if he had seen the Yanks drill at Fens Stadium this morning, he might have reason to doubt his remarks. At least the players think they're still in the race.

"Why, if we knock off the Redskins Sunday, we're tied for the top again," they insisted, "and "what we did once, we can do again."

Ted Collins

They maintain they were simply outlucked against the Lions. ("If Lio had been kicking from the 'dry' end of the field, we'd have been 'in' 12 to 10.") Outlucked or no, they're determined to prove they're a better club than their owner rates them.

It won't be easy to beat Sammy Baugh and Co. again. For one reason, Bagarus and De Correvont have improved greatly since their appearance in Boston. For another, the Yanks may be without the services of Bob Davis, and Davis' value to the club may be gleaned by Kopf's comment:

"Davis is the best pass defense player in the league. If he hadn't been forced out of the game, I doubt if the Lions would have completed the passes that set up their field goal."

Davis' ankle, re-injured Sunday, is twice its normal size. The Yanks not only need him defending against Baugh, but they need Parker and Dimancheff at their peak to cope with the improved Redskins. They believe they can beat 'em however, and that's worth a seven-point start.

Ted Collins: "We haven't lost a cent at home games despite the rain. In fact if we had taken in $5000 less each game, we'd still have been prepared for it. And if it rains every Sunday for the next three years, we'll still be operating . . . It may be a long time before we produce a champion. We lose the Brooklyn players after this season, and we'll have to start all over again. But some day we hope to make you proud of us." . . . Dick Harlow termed Yale's Paul Walker "the best college end I have ever seen," said Larry Kelley "couldn't shine Walker's shoes" . . . Kopf extolled end Don Currivan as a "second Don Hutson" . . . Hop Riopel was down from Holy Cross. "Yes, we're losing Kissell," he said. HC faces a "breather" in Coast Guard, then faces Temple which won its first six games, but which may bow to Penn State this week.

Paul Cieurzo announced his R. I. State eleven closed its season against BU so that Frank Keaney could get going with basketball. The Rams open Dec. 15 in New York. Tom Doherty, brother of the Sox Eddie is the tub-thumper for the Rams . . . Walt Holmer of BU, out of the Navy, praised the passing of State's Roderick, said BU would sit out this week, then face U. of Ct. with its high-scoring Trojanowski . . . Harvard entertains Kings Point and Bob Pfohl Saturday . . . BC plays Villanova under the Shibe Park arcs Saturday night . . . Ted Collins thinks Jimmy Crowley, head of the all-America Conference, is in "for plenty of headaches." He doubts the league ever will open.

Everybody at the luncheon agreed Fenway officials should be scolded for the wretched condition of the gridiron. "Should have washed that right field lake away with mops, if nothing else. Players said the water was over their boot-tops" . . . Conditions in the press loft were sad, too. Pretty hard to write with the sill an inch deep in slush. But the writers didn't have to remove the tarpaulin as the players did.

Bill Cronin Steers Hingham Properly

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Coach Bill Cronin was the least surprised person on the South Shore when his little Hingham High School football team chalked up four straight victories at the start of the season. He became slightly ruffled when the boys blew a verdict to Wellesley, but now that they've started on the victory path again, he's looking forward to a very successful conclusion to the campaign.

Just so long as the boys avoid the injury hoodoo—which has already started to creep in with minor blows—Hingham will enjoy its next three games against Braintree, Whitman and Weymouth.

Gridiron misfortunes haunt Coach Cronin's practice sessions. Last fall, he lost three first stringers in the first two weeks of the schedule. This autumn, the squad had been very lucky until last week when end Bob Basiliere popped up with a pair of cracked ribs and back Johnnie Bacon suffered a torn cartilage. And end John Smith, a regular, hasn't bounced back yet from a broken nose.

But, of course, center Larry Keenan, 160-pound veteran, is still playing with a steel brace on his knee as the result of an injury last fall. And tackle Oscar Beck, lanky 143-pound letterman, still favors a broken collar-bone of 1944. And Dick Delmonaco, 170-pound halfback, lacks the experience he might have gained if he hadn't suffered a painful leg injury last autumn.

Wingman Basiliere is one of three juniors who have smashed into Hingham's starting lineup this fall. On the other end, Harold Mahoney, 160, will be back next fall as will guard Paul Giovannucci, 150 pounds. Giovannucci and veteran Ray Beale, another 150-pounder, make up probably the lightest guard combination in the state. The pair flank Keenan, 160-pound senior, at center.

At the tackles, Coach Cronin has a pair of extremes in weights. Capt. Albert Michelson is the heaviest player on the team at 180 pounds, but Beck, at 143, is the lightest. And each is worth his weight in gold in the Hingham line.

Coach Cronin has actually been using six backfield men since the start of the season. Bacon, 150-pound letterman, and Mickey Valentino, 145-pound squatty junior, have been sharing the play-calling assignment. Dick Landis, 175-pounder, has cinched the lhb post while John Scott, 150-pound triple threat, can't be displaced at fb. Delmonaco and Archie Bjorklund, 165, split up the rhb berth.

Landis has really come into his own in the past two games. Against Wellesley, he contributed largely to Hingham's 15 first downs against Wellesley's five but he couldn't overcome Wellesley's 9-7 victory margin. Against Milton last week, he stole the show in a 12-6 triumph. Previously, it had been Bjorklund against Rockland (12-0), Abington (6-0) and North Quincy (6-0).

Hingham was fortunate to have had Coach Cronin's brother, Jack, from La Salle Academy on hand at the start of the season to exhibit the T as it should be handled. Brother Jack brought up his nifty backfield as the perfectionists of schoolboy ranks to put on a show. And now, Coach Cronin has Faculty Manager Frank Porter back from the Navy to do some scouting—a department that's been practically nil since the start of the war.

Other Hingham players who will see service include: ends—James Adams, a kid who came back from spinal meningitis. James Gallo, Dave McFarland, Roger Bates; tackles—Cliff Blair, Gerald Hughes, Pete Merlino, Herb Lawton, Bob Waugh, Leo McKenzie; guards—Ed Lahage, biggest of three brothers; Bob Gillen; center—Charlie Michelson, freshman brother of the captain; backs—Bob Chase, John Keefe, Larry Finn, Harold Waugh, and Wallace Stuart.

Hingham will play two games next week, Braintree Monday and Whitman, Saturday, Nov. 17, both away, but then will wind up at home against Weymouth, Thanksgiving Day.

Perform Autopsy On Stricken Boxer

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (INS)—An autopsy was to be performed today on Arthur Walker, 18, amateur Negro fighter who died in the ring at Jamaica Arena last night.

Walker collapsed in the second round after a fast exchange of blows with his opponent, Leroy Norton, 16, also a Negro. A police emergency squad worked for 90 minutes in a vain attempt to restore Walker to consciousness. Norton was released pending the result of the autopsy.

Villanova Drills For Eagles Game

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6 (AP)—Coming out of their battle with Army without injuries, the Villanova Wildcats began drilling yesterday for their eighth and final game of the football season Saturday night at Shibe Park against Boston College.

The contest will be the seventh in a series which was interrupted in 1934. Villanova has won three, B. C. two and the first game of the series ended in a tie.

Betting May Be Stopped At Post Time by New Rule

By JACK CONWAY

CHAIRMAN LOUIS HOFFMAN and Commrs. Harry Allen and Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., of the Massachusetts Racing Commission are giving serious consideration to a new racing rule which would close pari-mutuel betting machines at the track exactly on post time. This rule has been in effect in New York this year and it has been amazingly successful.

The New York betting figures tell the story. In 1945 a record breaking sum of $421,156,932 was wagered against $388,995,250 in 1944. There was an increase of $32,161,682 despite the fact there were 30 days less of racing due to the racing ban early in the year.

Louis Hoffman

The State of New York took down the tidy amount of $27,216,140 as its cut of the racing spoils.

These record handles were accomplished even though the mutuel machines were locked at post-time. If there was a delay for any reason, betting stopped at post time.

This rule eliminates long post parades. It gets the racing over on time, and gives the patrons of the track an opportunity to get home for dinner and then go some place at night if they wish.

Members of the Massachusetts Racing Commission have studied the workings of the New York rule and they have concluded it would be helpful to racing in Massachusetts.

The races have been run off promptly in recent years at Suffolk Downs, but there was a time at the East Boston track when, like the other New England tracks, it was guilty of proclaiming the post parades in an effort to increase the pari-mutuel handle.

'Rock Speeds Up Races

ROCKINGHAM Park proved that the public will bet just as much money if races are run off rapidly. During the fall meeting, Lou Smith has conducted his eight race programs with clocklike precision. Post time for the first race is 1:15 p. m. and shortly after 4:15 p. m. racegoers are on their way home.

This writer took the last train from Rockingham Park to Boston yesterday, had dinner at the Hotel Manger and was on his way to this office at 6:30 p. m. When I completed this essay, I went merrily on my way to the Callahan A. C. show at Mechanics Building and was on time for the opening preliminary.

While Lou Smith has been getting his races off so quickly the track has been doing a record business. Mack O'Dowd says the daily mutuel handle is well above $850,000. There was a time when Rockingham Park would have considered a $400,000 handle a big one for a Saturday.

People have learned to make their wages early. Once a person has been shutout and his choice wins, he will not delay in purchasing his ticket on the next race.

The new order of things results in better racing. Horses carrying weight are not beaten before they get to the post.

Jockeys are not subjected to unnecessary punishment, especially on cold and rainy days.

Seek Licenses for Fairs

CHAIRMAN HOFFMAN revealed to me there are several new Fair groups in the field for licenses. It is understood that Topsfield, Weymouth and Middleboro are seeking licenses to conduct pari-mutuel betting on horse racing in conjunction with Fairs in 1946.

Marshfield, Brockton, Northampton and Great Barrington are the established Fairs. The Commission has prepared a lengthy application blank to be used by associations or individuals seeking licenses for Fairs. It intends to find out everything possible about applicants before granting licenses.

The Fair circuit is a solid, healthy organization, and the Commission does not intend to permit any group that is not properly organized and which is lacking in racing experience to upset things.

One will require more than a pumpkin, a bag of potatoes and a few stray cows to get a license.

Jackie Harris Meets Leo Macucci Tonight

Jackie Carroll of Lawrence clashes with Gene Gomes of Boston in a six-rounder while in the opening bout of four rounds Bob Haley of Marblehead mingles with Bill Colton of Charlestown.

Leafs Collapse as Frank McCool Quits

By BILL GRIMES

A year ago with Frank McCool, a rookie, who had been tried out and rejected by the Blackhawks and Rangers, in the nets, the Toronto Maple Leafs opened the season with six straight victories.

To date, a tie with the Bruins, which was made possible by a third period penalty, is all the Stanley Cup holders have to show for four games. They have been beaten by Les Canadiens, Rangers and Chicago and are in sixth place, which was the winter quarters of Lester Patrick's New Yorkers for three years, without interruption.

Conn Smythe

McCool was to have been the Toronto goalie again this season. At training camp, Coach "Hap" Day gave "Finn" McCool the nod over Gordie Bell, Baz Bastien and Bud Lamanche. But, when Conn Smythe offered McCool a contract, the goalie, unheedful of the fact that he had agreed to terms last spring, demanded a $500 raise. Smythe refused. McCool pulled up stakes and returned to Calgary.

Before he and McCool agreed to disagree, Smythe had sent Lamanche on his way and assured Owner Harris of the Pittsburgh Hornets that Bastien would report immediately to Coach Max Kaminsky in the Smoky City. Smythe planned to retain Gordie Bell as a spare goalie. On that decision one could assume that Smythe rated Bell over Bastien. However, when McCool quit, Smythe must have started to second guess himself. He cancelled Bastien's transportation to Pittsburgh and assigned him to take over McCool's berth, thereby jumping the practically unknown and untried goalie over the highly touted and more experienced Bell.

TEAM FLOPS BADLY

The consensus of the experts, prior to the start of the N. H. L. season, said that Toronto was the club to beat. The Maple Leafs won the Stanley Cup from the Red Wings with two lines, Schriner-Bodnar-Carr and Davidson-Kennedy-Hill. So, when Syl Apps, Billy Taylor, Gaye Stewart, Bobby Goldham and Bill Ezinicki were discharged from the service and reported to Manager Day, the Maple Leafs were fully entitled to top rating. But, they have let the experts down.

Defeats do not set well with anyone connected with the Toronto organization, or the Queen City hockey public. So, it isn't by any means unlikely that Gordie Bell will be in the Maple Leafs nets when the Bruins made their second appearance of the season tomorrow night in Toronto.

As was the case in the Canadiens game, the Rossmen will not be at war strength on this trip. Bobby Bauer, who came out of the Detroit game 10 days ago with a badly bruised shoulder, and Pat Egan, who hasn't seen any action in either practice sessions or games, will not make the trip.

The Bruins leave today for Toronto. As the Maple Leafs will be in Detroit on Thursday, the Rossmen will lay over in the Queen City until Friday night. They will hold two practices at the Maple Leafs' Gardens.

After they leave Toronto, the Bruins will be "troupers." Because they must play in New York Sunday after meeting the Flying Frenchmen Saturday in Montreal, the Bruins will pack their equipment in duffle bags before pulling out of Toronto and ship their trucks home.

BRUINS' TRAVEL TROUBLES

Until they received some last minute information on the weather, the Bruins will not know whether they will make the trip from Montreal to New York by plane or bus. And it's just possible that they might be left stranded in the Quebec metropolis, through a combination of bad flying weather and a bus strike.

If they are obliged to bus it to the big city, the Bruins will climb into the conveyance immediately after the game, providing everything goes smoothly and as per schedule, they will reach their destination about noon Sunday.

Although they are in fourth place, the Bruins are only a game and a half in arrears of the pace-making Canadiens and Blackhawks, who hold a two-point edge over Detroit. The Rangers, strange as may seem to them, as well as the hockey zealots, are in the No. 5 slot, a half game up on the Maple Leafs.

NEW SANTA CLARA COACH

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6 (AP)—Laurence A. (Larry) Mullins, former Notre Dame backfield star, was named yesterday as head football coach of the University of Santa Clara. The announcement was made by the Rev. Father William C. Gianera, S.J., president of the school.

JOHN WARNER says:

The conversation might be like this: "Here I've given you the best years of my life and look how you neglect me. If I don't get some attention around here I'm going to leave. When I'm gone maybe you'll appreciate how much I meant to you. Why don't you take me to see John E. Warner and Associates. They really know how to make hair happy and contented. If you can't take a hint, how can you expect me to stay?"

If we can help you we'll tell you. If we can do nothing for you, we'll tell you that, too. We're proud of the public's faith in our integrity, because that's the reason for our success. There is no charge for consultation or examination. There are separate departments for men and women.

Hayes Outboxes Moore in 10 Rds.

By BILL SMITH

The long awaited duel between Timothy "Buddy" Hayes, 126½, South End, and Tommy Moore, 130¼, of South Boston, was staged at Mechanics Building last night and it lived up to advance notices with Hayes winning a split decision after 10 hectic rounds before a paid attendance of 2947 who contributed gross receipts of $4862 and a net of $3773.

Superior boxing ability by Hayes proved the deciding factor over the 10-round route. He jabbed Moore with his sharp left hand and mixed it with occasional hooks to the body and right hand leads to the head.

Moore was the harder hitter and had Hayes in distress on several occasions from hard punches to mid-section. The latter rallied from those flurries and kept his left hand popping into Moore's face with monotonous regularity.

The South Boston lad made a futile attempt in the last round to change the tide but it failed and Hayes won the ballots of Referee Jimmy McCarron and Judge Jim Shaughnessy. Judge Joe Blumsack voted a draw.

An old wound was reopened under Hayes' right eye in the second frame and ice had to be applied to a large swelling on Moore's right eye in the third session. Outside of that both fighters were unmarked at the finish.

Bruins Release 'Bingo'; Sign Flamon

The Boston Bruins had dropped one man and added another to their ice hockey roster today. Manager Art Ross, unable to conclude a deal with the Toronto Maple Leafs for Rudolph (Bingo) Kampman, defenseman, released Kampman.

Then he ordered Ferdinand Flamon, forward, who has playing with the Olympics, to join the Bruins.
